

UNIT 1

Communication

- The art of creating and sharing ideas for a specific purpose.
- Comes in different forms: Verbal, Non-verbal, Written, and Visual.

Principles of Effective Communication

1. Clarity – Ensuring the message is clear and understandable.
2. Conciseness – Delivering information in a brief and precise manner.
3. Completeness – Including all necessary details for comprehension.
4. Organization – Structuring communication logically and coherently.
5. Empathy – Considering the audience's emotions and perspectives.
6. Flexibility – Adapting communication style to different situations and audiences.

Audience Analysis

- Understanding the audience is crucial for effective communication.
- Factors to consider: Physical, Physiological, Cultural, Experiences, Perspectives, and Communication Style.

Communication and Globalization

1. Globalization has been regarded as the key to the worldwide integration of humanity.
2. We Filipinos have increased our awareness and acceptance of the notion that we belong to a diverse, global community.
3. Communication in the modern world must be anchored on the concept of diversity.
4. Professionals from countries that are traditionally known for sticking to their native tongue have started to learn English.
5. Digital technology has erased territorial boundaries among countries and among people with varying cultures.
6. Miscommunications in a global setting.
7. Cultural differences have accentuated cultural insensitivity, which is most felt in the business world.
8. Lack of cultural sensitivities: Examples include McDonald's advertising mistakes

in China and the Muslim community, and misunderstanding of international symbols at the African port of Stevedores.

Examples of Cultural Sensitivity Issues

- Showing the sole of a shoe (offensive in some cultures).
- Crossing legs during conversation (disrespectful in certain traditions).
- Blinking rapidly (can convey nervousness or dishonesty in some cultures).
- Handling Japanese business cards improperly (viewed as disrespectful).

Ethics in Communication

- Ethical communication occurs when messages are truthful, respectful, and considerate.
- Unethical communication includes misinformation, manipulation, and deceptive practices.

Impact of Past Experience and Prejudice on Communication

- Previous interactions shape communication styles and perceptions.
- Examples include:
 - Negative parental reactions affecting self-expression.
 - Colleagues forgetting crucial information leading to distrust.
 - Professors ignoring student inputs discouraging participation.

Commitment in Communication

- Commitment is shown through active listening, engagement, and respect for dialogue.

The "Naval Language" or The Belly Button Psyche

- This concept explores self-centered communication styles.
- Important to consider in professional and personal interactions.
- UNIT 2

Starting a Conversation

- Different social circumstances require variations in speaking styles.
- Example situations:
 - Talking to a close friend about coffee.

- Expressing love to a partner.
- Discussing grades with a teacher.

Communication Styles Matrix

- Developed by Dr. Eileen M. Russo
- Defines four communication styles based on two dimensions:
 - Level of assertiveness
 - Level of expressiveness

The Four Communication Styles:

1. Direct – High Assertiveness, Low Expressiveness
2. Spirited – High Assertiveness, High Expressiveness
3. Systematic – Low Assertiveness, Low Expressiveness
4. Considerate – Low Assertiveness, High Expressiveness

TIPS TO REMEMBER:

“BE OPEN AND BE AWARE”

VARIETIES OF LANGUAGE

- also called “lects”
- refer to the different variants of a language that can be sufficiently delimited from one another in terms of social, historical, or geo-spatial factors, thus forming language clusters

1. Pidgin – A new language developed when speakers of different languages need to communicate but do not share a common language.

- Example:
 - English: Hello, how are you?
 - Pidgin: How far? How you dey?

2. Creole – A pidgin that becomes the first language of children or a community’s mother tongue.

- Example (Chavacano, Philippines):
 - English: How are you today?
 - Chavacano: Como ta tu hoy?

3. Regional Dialect – A variety of a national language spoken in a particular area.

- Example:
 - English (Standard): How are you doing today?
 - Southern American English: How y’all doin’ today?
 - Australian English (Strine): I’ll be back in a tick.

4. Minority Dialect – A variety used as a marker of identity by a minority ethnic group while also using a standard language, usually alongside a standard variety.

5. Indigenized Varieties – Spoken mainly as second languages in former colonies with multilingual populations.

Language Registers

- Refers to the way a speaker uses language differently depending on the social context.

Factors Affecting Language Register:

1. Social atmosphere
2. Purpose of communication
3. Audience
4. Context of discourse

Types of Language Registers:

1. Intimate – Used in private, usually between two people.
 - Example: “I want the universe to see how lucky I am to have you.”
2. Casual – Used with friends, close acquaintances, colleagues, and family members.
 - Example: “Hey, do you wanna grab lunch?”
3. Consultative – Used when speaking to someone with specialized knowledge or giving advice. Use of honorifics or courtesy titles
 - Example: “I can see that you’ve overstretched a ligament, and unfortunately, this kind of injury takes quite a while to heal.”
4. Frozen – Historic or ritualistic language meant to remain unchanged.
 - Example: “We, the sovereign Filipino people, imploring the aid of Almighty God...”

5. Formal – Used in professional, academic, or legal settings, with structured rules.
 - Example: “I hereby instruct Pagcor to wind down and cease the operations of POGOs by the end of the year.”
6. Neutral – Non-emotional and fact-based, typically found in research or technical writing.

Communicating in a Multicultural Setting

Tip #1: Avoid forming expectations based solely on your own culture.

Tip #2: Develop proper communication skills suited for multicultural settings.

Tip #3: Remove personal biases and stereotypes that hinder understanding.

“Style does not only revolve around fashion, but also in communication.” Effective communication in multicultural settings requires awareness of language varieties, proper use of registers, and sensitivity to different communication styles.

UNIT 3

World Englishes

- Defined by Celce-Murcia (2014) as regionally distinct varieties of English that have emerged in different parts of the world.
- Examples:
 - Indian English
 - West African English
 - Singapore English
 - Filipino English

Balancing Identity and Intelligibility

- Kirkpatrick (2007) proposes a scale with two extremes:
 - Extreme 1: Goal of national or regional identity.
 - Extreme 2: Goal of intelligibility (global understanding).

Addressing the Problem:

1. Find a balance between identity and intelligibility.
2. Code-switching as an adaptive communication strategy.

Multimodality in Communication

- Definition: Uses two or more communication modes to convey meaning.
- Due to rapid advancements in digital communication, messages now rely on words, images, and other semiotics to deliver meaning effectively.

Types of Multimodal Texts

1. Paper-based – Traditional print materials like books, newspapers, and posters.
2. Digital – Online articles, social media posts, websites, and e-books.
3. Live – Face-to-face interactions, theater performances, and public speeches.
4. Transmedia – A combination of multiple platforms to convey a message (e.g., a story told through books, movies, and video games).

Key Takeaway: “Know when to adjust in every situation to avoid miscommunication.”

UNIT 4

Social Media Usage Trends

- 42% of people use social media to stay connected with friends.
- 39% use it to stay updated on news and current events (Global Web Index, 2017).

Social Responsibility in Social Media

1. The Golden Rule – Treat others online as you would in real life.
2. Never be a bully – Avoid online harassment and hate speech.
3. Think before you click – Be mindful of what you share or post.
4. Be responsible – Understand the consequences of your digital footprint.

New Media and Computer-Mediated Communication (CMC)

- New Media refers to highly interactive digital technology that allows information to be processed, stored, transformed, retrieved, hyperlinked, and accessed easily.
- Language in new media is sometimes referred to as CMC (Computer-Mediated Communication) refers to digital communication methods like social media, messaging apps, and online discussions.
- Crystal (2011): “The internet is not going away; it is only going to get larger.”

Types of CMC (Larana Company Framework)

1. Vernacular – Uses everyday language understood by all people, regardless of age, class, or background.
 - Example: Misspellings and abbreviations (e.g., cu, 2nyt, abt, y?)

2. Interpersonal – relationship-focused rather than subject-oriented.
 - Features: Topic development, turn-taking, back-channeling, and conversational repairs.
3. Spontaneous – is usually unplanned, unstructured, and sometimes impulsive
 - Example: Internet slang (e.g., b4n, f2f, trolls, memes, hashtags, meh)
4. Dialogical – Encourages continuous, back-and-forth exchanges.

English in the New Media

- Characteristics: Brief, multimodal, and ideological.
- Communication Planning Objectives:
 - To inform
 - To prevent misunderstanding
 - To present a point of view or reduce barriers
 - To persuade

Key Takeaway: “The world does not revolve around social media alone; take some time off your phone.”
